

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
November 15, 2010

Contact John Zicconi
802-828-1647

Vermont DMV Launches an Interactive Online Tutorial for Driver Exams

MONTPELIER – The Vermont Department of Motor Vehicles today became the first DMV in the nation to launch an interactive, online driver’s tutorial designed to help new drivers prepare for their learner’s permit exam.

The interactive tutorial uses high-tech animation to help new drivers learn the rules of the road, as well as educate them about the various steps one must go through to receive a license or learner’s permit.

“Learning to drive is a significant event, and we want to make the process innovative, captivating and interactive so that properly preparing for the written exam will be more appealing to today’s young people,” said DMV Commissioner Robert Ide.

The new interactive learning tool can easily be accessed through the Internet on a home PC, which makes it a convenient tool for student drivers to use both by themselves and with the help of family members. The interactive website can also be incorporated into driver education classes.

“Young people will learn more when they are involved with a learning process that is interesting and fun.” Ide said. “Providing them an interactive way to study the driver’s manual will not only help student drivers prepare to receive a learner’s permit or junior operator’s license, but it also will help make them better and safer drivers.”

The interactive tool does not contain every chapter of the Vermont Driver’s Manual, but it does include everything a new driver needs to know to pass the tests required to obtain a learner’s permit or junior operator’s license. It even contains a practice exam.

To access the DMV’s new online tool, visit dmv.vermont.gov.

John Zicconi
VTrans Director Planning, Outreach & Community Affairs
Telephone: 802.828.1647 ♦ Fax: 802.828.3522